I remember the good growing up days in Huntersville in the 60s and 70s. We roamed the town in safety, hiked in the woods and even built a cabin in those neighborhood woods (now Vermillion) . Those were happier times. Rick your Spirit soars in the woods you hunted and the lakes you fished in. You completed your souls work here. Now rest in the arms of the Angels and I'll see you later on brother.

I remember good childhood memories when we were kids ...playing and building forts with all the neighborhood kids in east Huntersville. Rick had a big personality and always seemed to find trouble, but he had a good heart and loved going to his church. I feel he is finally at rest with his family and friends who preceded him in death. Love you, Brother....
