Yolanda Robinson posted:

She had wisdom and a sense of humor. Back when we were experiencing more severe drought and we were only allowed to water the grass a couple specific days a week Barbara and I were having a conversation at a neighborhood event about how to save water around the house. She said to save water " I do two winkies in the toilet before I flush it to save water, and one per each "natural deposit". And yes, to help save water during a drought I did the same thing.
