Wyatt LeDoux

JAN 15, 1999 - MAR 31, 2026

Wyatt Marcelus LeDoux, 27, of Charlotte was welcomed into heaven on March 31, 2026. He was born on January 15, 1999 in Hendersonville, NC. Born to Kirk Matthew LeDoux and Melanie Thelen LeDoux, Wyatt was their miracle baby.

Wyatt was a strong, humble, joyful, and deeply loved man, gifted in countless ways that he used to bless the world with. He lived full-heartedly and his love for life and the little things in it was infectious. He didn't need many words for you to recognize that he was a well of wisdom and understanding, and at the same time he was the funniest person you knew.

He was a man of unwavering faith; he knew what he believed and lived it every day. He believed in God's will over our lives and in "God things", of which he saw many. He believed in the power of prayer, always remembering family, friends and acquaintances in his daily prayers and would drop everything to cover someone in prayer when there was an immediate need. Wyatt studied religion and was confident and grounded in the hope he found in his Savior. At age 17 he chose to be publicly baptized. He wholeheartedly believed in eternal life, which he is now experiencing in its fullness.

He was a fiercely devoted, truly loving husband to Emily, exhibiting a heart full of grace, humility, generosity, and endless kindness and humor. He was always the quickest to forgive and love unconditionally. Wyatt was full of surprise, and he brought endless fun, laughter and adventure to their relationship, enjoying traveling and experiencing new things together. Wyatt asked Emily to marry him in January of 2023 at the very top of their favorite place to visit together, South Mountain State Park, and they tied the knot in October of 2023.

He was a proud and attentive father to his daughter, his "munchkin", always thinking of her first and prioritizing sweet time with her even after long days. His heart was so soft towards her; he loved making her laugh and watching her learn new things, calling her "impressive" and "cracked". She was his pride and joy, and he loved being a father. He sacrificed and worked tirelessly for his family, well beyond the work day, thinking of them in every decision he made. He was simply the best there is.

Wyatt was a loving and dependable son and brother. His love ran deep for his family, always having them on his mind, relaying family anecdotes and deeply valuing family traditions. Having been homeschooled allowed him to spend much more life alongside his family, strengthening bonds and creating many memories.

He was a wonderful and lifelong friend, and made everyone feel seen and valued as a person, remembering small details about them, making them feel special in a way only he could. Wyatt was a good-hearted neighbor, calling hello to neighbors by name, and always willing to lend a hand. He was more than happy to invite a group of neighbor children into his home for a Christmas party with pizza, gifts and games to give them a memorable Christmas.

Wyatt graduated with honors from UNCC, earning his Bachelor's Degree in Mechanical Engineering Technology and his Master's Degree in Applied Energy and Electromechanical Engineering. He excelled in his role as a Mechanical Design Engineer at Norton Rixson, where he was well-loved and respected. He was known there for his always cheerful attitude, dedication to giving his all to every project, and his ability to think creatively to improve existing products and create new, never before seen products to serve the company well. In August he earned first place at the annual ASSA ABLOY Innovation Challenge, where around 250 ideas were submitted from 12 different countries. Following this achievement, he went on to lead the team through every step of development- designing, prototyping, testing, sourcing, manufacturing, marketing, and finally, selling the product. This project was the fastest of any Innovation Challenge projects brought to market since the event began in 2015, a clear reflection of Wyatt's determination. He also filed a patent for the idea which is currently under review. Wyatt built meaningful relationships with his work family and often shared stories after his work days with them.

Wyatt was incredibly creative, having the unique vision to make nothing into something useful or beautiful. There was nothing he couldn't do or fix, and if he didn't know how, he certainly learned it and then mastered it. His ambition and perseverance carried him far. His passions and giftings were too many to count. He had a natural talent for countless hobbies, enjoying his leather working, woodworking, designing, and restoring things. One of his favorite possessions was his 2000 yellow Ford Ranger; he loved that it was considered "vintage" and drove it every day. He was a self-taught musician and music lived in him. He made lively music on his guitar and piano, and had a beautiful voice. He was a great song-writer, but also loved making up silly tunes, or changing words to songs to sing around the house to make his wife and daughter smile. He used his gift of music to lead worship at youth group as a teenager, where he met Emily in 2016. He worshipped in such a way that had his mom raising her hands in worship from down in the living room. Wyatt enjoyed his Johnny Cash, oldies, and his country music. He also spent many hours experimenting with food and cooking delicious meals for friends and family. He loved creating his own concoctions and taking food one step further, and was recently enjoying cooking many Alton Brown recipes.

Wyatt had a unique way of making people laugh. He was a gifted actor and voice actor and his impersonations had no match. His family would beg him to do impersonations or tell his hilarious stories again and again which he would, gladly. He was goofy, and just purely himself. He had a movie quote, often from his favorite movie, The Princess Bride, for every occasion.

Wyatt will be painfully missed and joyfully remembered in every room. Every life that he touched is forever changed by his kindness, humble spirit, and love. He was a gift to this world for his 27 years, and his legacy will live on through his daughter who already shares so many meaningful, beautiful traits with her daddy.

In addition to his parents, survivors include his wife Emily Claire Chaney LeDoux; daughter, Colette Nova LeDoux; grandmothers, Glenna Fontenot LeDoux and Caroline Ray Thelen; brothers, Preston (Perla), Roman, James, Jesse; nieces, Amelia and Adela; nephew, Oliver; and many aunts and uncles, and cousins.

Celebration of life services will be announced at a later date.

Since the day I started drafting this, more and more memories keep resurfacing because Wyatt really was that unforgettable of an individual. Memories with Wyatt have always been - and are even more so now - cherished. He and I were closest in high-school when we were going to the same youth group, and would joke that we were siblings because our glasses made us kind of look related. I vividly remember youth group worship team practice. We would take a break from the setlist and start jamming to Mumford and Sons songs. Wyatt will live in my memory as being selfless and generous. He gave such thoughtful gifts. Over time, he gave me a mandolin, a vintage astrolabe (seafarers directional tool), and one of my prized possessions to this day - a Rand McNally's world Atlas from the 1940s. It has always stood with a place of honor on my bookshelf through all my moves. Even more so than material objects, Wyatt gifted the people in his life with quality time. He was never too busy to talk, and often sacrificed his time to drive me around before I had my license. Wyatt loved the people in his life so genuinely, and I wish I had been able to see the husband and father he had grown to become. Though our paths drifted apart post highschool graduation, his impact on my life has been grand. He helped me and so many other people through the darkest moments in their lives. Always with an encouraging word, deep empathy, and a joke to cheer us up. Though the specific punchlines have long since faded from memory, Wyatt's perfect comedic timing and how he could make everyone laugh will forever remain with me. Having known Wyatt is a great honor. To Wyatt, my long lost twin, The week before I heard the news, I had thought of you when I bought tickets for a concert at the same venue where you brought me to see Twenty One Pilots for the first time. I still remember how you played the ukulele while waiting in line for that show and befriended everyone standing in line around us. I almost texted you when I thought about that, even pulling up your contact in my phone still saved as "White DeLoux," but didn't - I regret that. Thank you for buying me that ticket. When I'm at the venue again, I'll nod towards the section where we sat, and make sure to sing my heart out because I know that's what you would do. Two days before I heard the news, I thought of you and our highschool friend group nostalgically as I booked a campsite at Morrow Mountain where we had all went camping that one time. I should have texted you then too. When I go, I'll make a s'more for you. Until we get to see you again in eternity, you'll keep living on as a bright light in the memory of all who knew you. To everyone reading this learn from my mistakes - when you think about your old friends - reach out and let them know.

Wyatt was a brilliant mind with a humble, caring heart. He took the time to truly understand things, whether it be a product, problem, or person. He would then make it his personal goal to make things better. I'm blessed to have been able to work with Wyatt and see this firsthand. I remember walking over to his desk and seeing the ultrasound of Colette on the wall for the first time. He just sat there with the biggest smile, so proud of his family. He will be greatly missed until we meet again in the presence of Jesus.

I met Wyatt in 2016 on a mission trip to Haiti with WCC. He instantly made me laugh. He was smart and witty. One time the boys and I drove an hour to this sunflower field. I've never had so much fun or laughed so hard. I'll love and miss you forever Wyatt!

Wyatt is one of the guys that made me the man I am today. There's no way I can summarize him or what he means to me in one post so I'll just focus on this one picture. Edisto beach. Me, Greyson, Taplin, and Wyatt. If you look closely, Taplin is posing and Greyson was kind enough to capture the moment. One of the things Wyatt and I would do together is train in different weapons and martial arts, so to train at a sandy beach felt like a movie. For him, he probably was just goofing off with a friend. For me, it was a dream come true. This picture captures a lot, at least to me. Sometimes we were on opposing sides, but I always knew it was for my betterment. I always knew that if I called, he'd answer. He never would do something half-way. He was talented to a point that made me hate him sometimes. Music? I'll figure it out. Working on a project? YouTube. Learning how to train in various Filipino weapons? I'll give it a shot. Seeing him try inspired me to try. Though, it would be years before I really accepted that. Regret doesn't begin to describe how I feel. To the man that would stay up all night with me. To my competitor that always could make the girls laugh. To my brother who would never stop hanging out with me. I trust that you are resting in glory with Jesus. Thank you for pushing us forward.

Being able to be friends with him at such a young age and watch him & Emily's love blossom from the beginning was such a blessing. My heart goes out to Emily, their daughter, and their families. May the love of the Lord shine through on them even through all of this grief.

Some people leave a mark without even trying. Wyatt was one of them. Smart, kind, and always had more ideas than the room could hold. April 4, 2025, being on his team that day is something I'll never stop smiling about. You left too soon, but you'll never leave our hearts.

Wyatt was truly a pleasure to work with. His smile lit up the room, and it was clear how much he loved his job. One of my favorite memories is him popping into my office just to ask if I had any new swag—especially hats! He was smart and had a great sense of humor. You couldn't help but like him. His passing is heartbreaking to all of us who worked with him. I am praying for his family and friends during this difficult time.
